A few helpful tips from the pros at Home Botanicals! Be sure to remove the plants completely from their boxes as soon as they arrive! Only water when the soil becomes completely dry. It is best to put your finger in the soil to be sure it is completely dry before watering. Be sure your succulents are in containers with excellent drainage. If the container does not drain be sure to use a spray bottle to lightly mist the top of the soil. If you are re-potting your plants try to use a "Cactus Mix" type soil to aid the plant in proper drainage. Succulents and Cacti need plenty of sun and warmth. Once they are removed from their boxes you will want to get them into some indirect or filtered sun. Do not put plants just out of the box into direct sun. The plants need a week or so to re-acclimate. Keep an eye on your plants and slowly re-introduce them to the sunshine they love! Many succulents and cacti can handle full direct sun. Some cannot. You will want to watch your plants as you introduce more sun, to be sure their leaves do not burn. If you see burn on the plant reduce the amount of direct sun and give the plant time to heal. Succulents and cacti do not like cold weather. A good rule of thumb is to bring them inside once the temp drops below 40 degrees.
