

Cleaning and Storing the Canopy

Wash using only warm water and mild soap. Don't use detergent, as this can be abrasive and otherwise damage the canopy cover material. Don't use bleach or harsh chemicals.

Leave canopy and frame open will makes it dry quicker and prevents the risk of tearing and fraying.

Make sure the canopy is completely dry before breaking the canopy down for storage. This will prevent mildew from forming and growing within the canopy cover's folds and creases.

Over time, small leaks and tears across the canopy may become inevitable. But this doesn't have to make the canopy unusable! Spray the leak or tear with a seam sealer, available at most hardware and sporting goods stores. Seal the hole or tear as soon as possible to keep it from spreading. Be sure to follow the sealer's instructions exactly. If the leak or rend is too big, use a patch kit available from Caravan Canopy Int'l.
