

LATTICE MOULDING USES

Lattice moulding can be used to make lattice panels for privacy screens on patios and fences. Lattice moulding can also be used to conceal joints or as a decorative moulding at the edge of an interior corner, to cover a space between two cabinets or around edges to give a finished look. It can be used separately, or can be used in combination with another moulding.

When using outdoors, it is recommended to stain or prime and paint this moulding after installation with an exterior grade product to protect the wood from splitting and cracking which occurs naturally over time when exposed to the exterior elements.

Glue and finish nails are usually used for installation.